ARDS BLOOD TESTING HUB SECURED

The South Eastern Trust's Community Phlebotomy Hubs in Ards Hospital along with Downe Hospital and Lagan Valley Hospital provide a vital blood testing service in the heart of the community.

In 2025, the Team carried out an incredible 28,000 tests.

The Trust is delighted that this valuable and growing service is now fully funded by the Department of Health.

The hubs play a crucial role in providing blood tests in local hospitals, meaning patients do not have to travel to the Ulster Hospital.

When the service began prior to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Team initially helped approximately 400 patients per year. However, during 2024/25 alone, the service delivered an impressive 28,000 blood tests, clearly demonstrating how vital and well used the hubs are by both patients and clinicians. On average, 2,000 patients go through the hubs each month.

Patients attend the Community Phlebotomy Hubs for blood tests ahead of planned procedures or treatment. This includes patients from the Diabetes Service, those undergoing cancer treatment, patients receiving biologic therapies and anyone preparing for surgery. Pre-assessment Nurses, particularly when carrying out pre-assessments, can refer patients directly to the Community Phlebotomy Hubs to ensure all required blood work is completed in advance and patients are clinically cleared for their procedures or surgery.

Having blood results available ahead of appointment means clinical staff have the necessary information at hand, helping to avoid delays and improving overall care pathways.

Changing careers supported by Sports Turf Apprenticeship training

Sports Turf Apprenticeships at the College of Agriculture, Food and Rural Enterprise (CAFRE) offer more than a qualification, they provide pathways into skilled, respected and progressive careers, all while earning as you learn.

This is demonstrated through the journey of Phillip Shields, a Level 3 Sports Turf Apprentice at CAFRE's Greenmount Campus and First Assistant Head Greenkeeper at Blackwood Golf Centre. By combining structured learning with day-to-day experience in a professional golf environment, Phillip has developed both the technical knowledge and leadership skills required to succeed in the sports turf industry.

Before entering greenkeeping, Phillip studied Law, achieving an LLB (Hons) and spending six years working in the legal industry. Redundancy during the Covid 19 pandemic became an unexpected turning point in his career. A temporary job at Holywood Golf Club, secured through a friend, introduced him to greenkeeping. This role quickly became far more than short term employment. During this period, Phillip built a solid foundation in turf maintenance, machinery operation, teamwork and health and safety.

CAFRE provided Phillip with the opportunity to turn his passion into a profession. Studying Level 2 and now Level 3 Sports Turf Apprenticeship courses strengthened his skills through a deeper understanding of turf science, soils, drainage and plant health and course management principles.

Within just ten months at Blackwood Golf Centre, Phillip progressed into the role of First Assistant Head Greenkeeper. He supports the Head Greenkeeper with planning and organising daily operations, overseeing course presentation standards, and working closely with the team to deliver consistently high-quality playing surfaces.

Phillip's commitment and progress through CAFRE have been recognised across the industry. He was awarded BIGGA Greenkeeper of the Year 2024, and more recently was selected as the only greenkeeper from Northern Ireland to join the BIGGA Future Turf Managers Initiative to further his development.

CAFRE also encourages students to act as ambassadors for their professions. Phillip is passionate about promoting greenkeeping and educating the public through TikTok and Instagram (@thatturfman), where he shares behind the scenes and educational content highlighting the skill, planning and effort involved in maintaining high quality golf courses.

With ambitions to become a Head Greenkeeper, work at a venue hosting a major golf competition, and eventually mentor the next generation of greenkeepers, Phillip's story highlights how CAFRE's Level 3 Sports Turf Apprenticeship training equips learners with the skills, confidence and industry connections to build a successful long-term career.

If you are interested in pursuing an Apprenticeship in Sports Turf, visit CAFRE on our Horticulture Open Day at Greenmount Campus on Wednesday 11 March. For more information and to book your place, please visit: www.cafre.ac.uk.

NIFRS CELEBRATES NEWTOWNARDS WHOLETIME FIREFIGHTER GRADUATE

The graduation ceremony was held at its Learning & Development College in Cookstown, where the Firefighter graduates spent the last 18 weeks completing an intensive training course, packed with realistic scenarios to prepare them to respond to real-life incidents while on duty.

Rhys Mercer, Wholetime Firefighter from Newtownards, was among the cohort who graduated from NIFRS. During the ceremony, Firefighter Mercer was recognised for his exceptional performance in training by receiving the Top Trainee award with a Shield and the George Moore Trophy.

The Firefighters proudly demonstrated some of the specialist knowledge and range of practical skills they learned during their training to their family and friends as part of the special celebration. These included using breathing apparatus, tactical firefighting techniques, and responding to road traffic collisions and rescues.

As part of their rigorous training programme, they also learned how to deliver essential fire prevention and community safety training to members of the public.

NIFRS Chief Fire & Rescue Officer, Aidan Jennings said:

"Today is an incredibly proud day for NIFRS as we welcome 24 new Wholetime Firefighters to our Service. Each of them has excelled throughout both our challenging recruitment process and the intense 18-week training programme that followed. These are not designed to be easy, so getting to this point is a fantastic achievement.

"Our expert trainers have played an instrumental role in preparing our trainee Firefighters over the last 18 weeks. They have been superb teachers, exemplary role models and true ambassadors for NIFRS.

"This next generation of Firefighters have chosen this career path because they want to make a difference in our community. They want to work closely with others to make Northern Ireland a safer place to live."

NI Water Education Team Visits West Winds Primary School

NI Water's education team recently paid a visit to West Winds Primary School in Newtownards where the lessons of the day were on how to lag and tag your water pipes at home to protect them during freezing weather conditions, and also how to save water by using a waterbutt.

NI Water has produced a bright yellow tag for customers to loop around their stop valves in their premises as part of its winter prep campaign. NI Water's education team have been visiting schools and providing tags to the children to bring home. The children were tasked with the important job of telling everyone at home where their stop valve is located and asking a grown up to put the tag on the valve so it will be easily identifiable in the event of a burst pipe.

NI Water also donated a waterbutt to West Winds Primary School for use in their garden.

Waterbutts are a great way of harvesting rainwater, which can then be used to water plants or wash windows.

NI Water education officer Anna Killen said "It was a pleasure to meet the wonderful pupils at West Winds Primary School and to talk to them about how a stop valve is usually located under the kitchen sink and how they are used to shut off the flow of water in a pipe in an emergency. They've all been given their very own NI Water tag to take home for their families to use."

"It was also a pleasure to talk to the pupils about the difference a waterbutt can make when trying to save water. We get plenty of rain in Northern Ireland but this rainwater has to be cleaned at our treatment works before it goes into the taps. Using a waterbutt to catch the rain is just one way we can all have play a part to ensure there's enough water for everyone now and in the future."

Ards and North Down Borough Council is pleased to announce a new partnership with The Hygiene Bank – Ards and North Down Project, becoming the first local authority in Northern Ireland to host official donation drop-off points within Council-operated leisure facilities.

Collection boxes are now in place at Ards Blair Mayne Wellbeing and Leisure Complex, Comber Leisure Centre and Portaferry Sports Centre.

This initiative will support The Hygiene Bank's ongoing efforts to tackle hygiene poverty across Ards and North Down. The local project, run entirely by volunteers, has been serving the community for the past seven years, providing essential hygiene items to a wide network of community partners including foodbanks, community and church groups, schools, and other organisations supporting individuals and families facing hardship.

Mayor of Ards and North Down, Councillor Gillian McCollum, added,

“We are proud to support The Hygiene Bank and the vital work it carries out across our Borough. Hygiene poverty is an issue that affects many households quietly but profoundly. By providing drop-off points in our leisure centres, we hope to make it easier for residents to donate and to help ensure that essential items reach those who need them most. This partnership reflects our ongoing commitment to supporting community wellbeing and ensuring that no one in Ards and North Down goes without the basics.”

Mayor of Ards and North Down, Councillor Gillian McCollum alongside (L-R), Councillor Rachel Ashe and Jean McGrogan, Hygiene Bank Ards and North Down Project.

Jean McGrogan, The Hygiene Bank Ards and North Down Project said,

“We, as volunteers with The Hygiene Bank, Ards and North Down Project, are very grateful to Ards and North Down Borough Council for becoming the first Drop Off Points within the local Council Leisure Complexes.

Each donation means so much to families who need our help, and this partnership will greatly enhance our ability to support those experiencing hygiene poverty.”

The Hygiene Bank collects essential everyday items commonly found in homes, such as shower gel, shampoo, soap, toothpaste and toothbrushes, toilet rolls, nappies and baby care essentials, household cleaning and laundry products.

Ards and North Down Borough Council encourages residents to donate what they can during their visit to one of the participating leisure centres.

NENDRUM COLLEGE PUPILS SUPPORT CHILDREN'S MENTAL HEALTH WEEK

Pupils from Comber's Nendrum College have taken part in a series of workshops designed to provide fun engaging techniques to support their emotional wellbeing in and out of the classroom, as part of Children's Mental Health Week.

The workshops were delivered through the Emotional Wellbeing Team in Schools (EWTs), a Regional programme led by Health and Social Care staff across all five Trust areas. Through interactive sessions and classroom-based discussions, pupils explored how to talk openly about their feelings and develop a stronger sense of belonging within their school community.

In today's social media driven world, it is increasingly important that schools create supportive environments where pupils feel heard, seen and understood.

During the session at Nendrum College, Year Eight pupils took part in relaxed discussions, focussing on why a sense of belonging is so important for mental health, as well as how small acts of kindness towards one another can make such a difference.

Pupil, Sophie Rowntree, shared how much she enjoyed the session. Sophie said, "I really liked it and learning how important our mental health is. Coming from Primary Seven to Year Eight is fine, it is not scary and the teachers are so nice. I found the morning really good and really helpful."

Emotional Health and Wellbeing Practitioner Louise Begley has been delivering the programme across schools in the South Eastern Trust and Belfast Trust areas. "We have been delivering workshops and assembly's this week in Nendrum College as part of Children's Mental Health Week.

"It is really important, from Year Eight onwards, to build on the preventive education side of things by helping children understand what mental health is, how they can look after their own emotional wellbeing and what support is available to them and how they can access it.

"Our service is based on the 'Children and Young People's Emotional Health and Wellbeing in Education Framework' published in 2021, which highlighted some of the emotional difficulties some children can experience in Northern Ireland. It is important for our young people to be learning about their mental health and what they can do to support their wellbeing."

L-R Emotional Health and Wellbeing Practitioner Louise Begley, Year Eight Pupil Sophie Rowntree, Nendrum College Teacher Mrs Williams and Emotional Health and Wellbeing Practitioner Gemma Vaughan

Portaferry hosted NI Science Festival Events

The wonders of science, technology, engineering, the arts and maths were recently explored at NI Science Festival with support from Tourism Northern Ireland.

The festival which took place from 11-22 February 2026, offered a vibrant programme of events at venues across Northern Ireland, which included workshops, tours, talks and interactive activities for people of all ages.

In Portaferry - Portico Arts & Heritage Centre hosted 'Never Always Ever' and Strangford Lough Activity Centre hosted several events including Foraging Afloat, Paddle Back in Time and Paddle with a Purpose.

Throughout the Festival World-class scientists discussed cutting-edge research and what the future might hold, while there were also scientific debates, comedy, music and film screenings planned.

Highlights included a talk on examining

Ireland's historical and cultural relationship with superstition, 'Escape to the Chateau' star and sustainability advocate Dick Strawbridge in conversation and a talk by theoretical physicist Professor Jim Al-Khalili on how a century of quantum mechanics has shaped our world and the next frontiers of quantum science.

First launched in 2015, the NI Science Festival has developed into one of the biggest celebrations of science in the UK and Ireland, connecting leading scientists, thinkers and creators with audiences of all backgrounds.

It aims to inspire

The NI Science Festival

is one of 14 events which secured funding through the fund. It is estimated that the NI Science Festival will attract around 50,000 visitors, with 10% coming from outside Northern Ireland.

Around 600 participants were expected to take part in the various events planned with 3,000 commercial bednights (hotel, B&B, guesthouse, self-catering) set to be booked.

Siobhan McGuigan, Head of Events at Tourism NI, said: "Tourism NI is delighted to support NI Science Festival.

"The festival boasts a host of engaging events across the region with many taking place at innovative venues such as the Seamus Heaney Homeplace and at Armagh Planetarium, which will attract visitors of all ages, outside the peak season.

Sarah Jones, Director of the NI Science Festival, said: "We are grateful to Tourism NI for its support through the ITEF. This investment has enabled NI Science Festival to significantly increase our activity this year, delivering events right across Northern Ireland - from Rathlin and Portaferry to Enniskillen and beyond.

"The funding has allowed us to present an ambitious programme featuring world-leading science communicators, including Professor Alice Roberts and Professor Jim Al-Khalili, attracting new audiences from Great Britain, the Republic of Ireland and overseas.

VOICE OF HOPE CHOIR

The Wellness Recovery Network within the South Eastern Trust, is transforming the lives of people in recovery from mental health and addiction challenges through a range of creative and supportive programmes.

One such initiative, a singing for health group called ‘Voice of Hope’, has empowered many individuals to rebuild confidence, rediscover their voices and reconnect with others through the shared joy of music improving their overall mental health.

Among those whose lives have been positively transformed is 72-year-old piano teacher, Anuk Rooney from Bangor, who credits the group with supporting her recovery following a diagnosis of depression. Anuk, who previously taught music in the United States before moving to Northern Ireland six years ago, explains how the group helped her reconnect with her passion after stepping away from music during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Anuk said, “During COVID I became very depressed and had to step back from my much-loved work as a piano teacher. I found out about the Wellness Recovery Network support groups and went along to one. While I was there, I heard about the singing group in Ards and thought it would be something I could try, even if it was just to listen to other people sing.

“Going along to the music group was so much fun. It was lovely to hear people sing and just as importantly, to have people to talk to. The group members have now become my friends.”

Wellness Recovery Network Co-ordinator, Angela O’Hara highlighted the benefits of the group and its inclusive approach. Angela stated, “The Voice of Hope Group was formed in 2017 and is a singing for health group. You do not have to be able to sing to join, you just need to enjoy music. Everyone is welcome to attend.

“The group is very uplifting and is ideal for anyone looking for routine, connection and confidence-building. It runs every Monday afternoon in Action Mental Health in Jubilee Road, Newtownards.

Angela also explained that the group works in partnership with Right Key, an organisation specialising in supporting people in mental health and addiction recovery through music and singing for health. Angela added, “I have worked in the Trust for 10 years and this is without doubt the best-attended group we have ever run. Each week, around 15 people return for another session.

“It is a real privilege to be part of this group. I love my job and getting to sing along with the group every Monday afternoon is a real joy. Singing is a hugely undervalued wellness tool and the benefits are incredible.”

Anyone interested in attending the Voice of Hope singing group can self-refer by contacting wellnessrecoverynetwork@setrust.hscni.net or calling (07713) 088 676.

WADING FOR WORMS – THE OYSTERCATCHER

Peep peep peep peep peep peep peep peep peep peep...

I heard them before I saw them. It was not until I reached the field gate off this narrow country road that I was able to watch them scurrying around, feeding along with a flock of rooks and a couple of jackdaws, digging into the ground with their massive, red/orange beaks and pausing only to call...peep peep peep...

The rooks were disciplined, moving steadily forward, probing for worms and other invertebrates in and under the grass, only occasionally breaking their rhythm to lunge at a straying jackdaw or one of their own but further down the pecking order.

In contrast, the oystercatchers behaved much as they would along a rocky beach, hurrying from one prospective feeding spot to another, basically all over the place, but clearly intent on finding food in late winter when storms or high tides might have restricted availability along the coast, a few miles away.

Oystercatchers are rather stocky waders, easily told apart from other wader kin such as turnstones and curlews by their larger size, striking black and white plumage, and that piercing piping call.

Around 60,000 oystercatchers spend the winter around the Irish coasts, the residents supplemented by migrants from Iceland and Norway. While their numbers are in decline, they are still relatively common and easily recognised, and certainly one of the waders that I enjoy seeing and hearing.

Although they will occasionally visit farmland to feed...and in the past few decades have been seen breeding and feeding at inland loughs... they are primarily birds of the marine edge. Despite their name, they seldom eat oysters, preferring cockles and mussels which they prise or break open using that massive, pointed beak, their diet supplemented by lugworms and other large invertebrates.

Winter is a great time to visit our coasts to see and hear the myriad waders and other water birds which find food and shelter here to sustain them until spring.

British pet parents struggling to cover cost of rising vet bills

One-in-three UK pet parents delay or skip vet treatment because of high costs

Majority of dog and cat owners support an end to postcode pricing at vets

Jollyes, the UK's leading value pet retailer, offers major savings on core vet services such as vaccinations and microchipping, making high quality pet care available to all

As the UK's leading value pet retailer Jollyes Pets, today released new research that laid bare the concern felt by pet parents about the cost of rising vet services.

In a survey conducted last week by OnePoll[2] on behalf of Jollyes Pets, almost one-in-three (30 per cent) pet parents said they'd delayed or skipped treatment for their pet because of rising vet prices.

And almost a quarter (25 per cent) said they'd sacrificed something they wanted so they could cover a vet's bill.

What's more over six-in-ten (63 per cent) of UK dog and cat owners said vets should offer consistent national pricing for the services they provide.

And according to the survey, 92 per cent of pet parents want vets to follow Jollyes' lead and introduce nationwide prices and transparent marketing, clearly putting costs on display in vet clinics and on their websites.

Jollyes Pets is committed to making high-quality pet care a right for all, not a privilege for the few.

That's why prices at Jollyes' vet clinics are at the same low prices nationwide, with none of the local price variations that other big vet groups apply.

A two-course vaccination for a new puppy or kitten is just £55.00 at any Jollyes vet clinic and a booster vaccination for either a dog or cat, is a flat £35.00.

Chipping a dog or cat at is £20.00 at Jollyes Pets and a combined first vaccination course and microchip is £68.00.

Jollyes Pets chief executive officer-designate Adam Dury said:

"It's clear pet parents across the UK are really struggling to fund vet bills that have exploded over the past five years.

"While our vet clinics offer simple services such as vaccines and microchipping, those services cover nine in ten visits to a vet – with significant savings.

"As our survey shows, customers want prices transparency and lower prices with the same price from one end of the country to the other.

"That's why we're focused on opening more stores to provide communities access to lower vet clinic prices for the services they need."

The vet market is dominated by six large veterinary groups[3], that control 60 per cent of the market and Jollyes Pets offers a low-cost, high-quality alternative for services such as vaccinations and microchipping that's the price leader, over 40 per cent better value.

In the next two months, regulation[4] is expected that will improve price transparency in the £6.3bn sector that, according to the Office for National Statistics has seen cost of taking pets to the vet rise by almost 50 per cent[5] since 2020.

Across its 73 vet clinics nationwide[6], Jollyes now offers over 20,000 hours of appointment time with Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons (RCVS) vets – an increase of 9.3 per cent on the previous year and has over 100 trained colleagues (SQP) licensed to offer advice on over-the-counter medicines.

Bookings can also now be made online with fully trained Royal Veterinary College-accredited vets who work with long-term sector experts from Evile & Jones.

Over the past three years Jollyes has almost doubled the number of stores across the UK, becoming a clear challenger brand in the UK pet retail market.

Earlier this month Jollyes released strong trading results[7] that demonstrated how significant rises in food and vet bills over the year were impacting household budgets.

In late 2025 the RSPCA reported pet abandonment and neglect cases were at a five-year high because of these economic concerns[8].

Ards International Guitar Festival Strikes a Chord for Its 30th Anniversary

The much loved Ards International Guitar Festival will return to Newtownards from 15 - 19 April, celebrating an incredible 30 years of world class performances, inspiring collaborations and unforgettable guitar driven moments.

Organised by Ards and North Down Borough Council, the 2026 programme brings together exceptional players from across the UK, Ireland and beyond, honouring the versatility and global influence of the guitar in all its forms.

This milestone year opens with French virtuoso Pierre Bensusan, who appears as part of his 50th Anniversary World Tour. Known worldwide as “Mister DADGAD”, Bensusan brings his unmistakable voice and musical depth to the Queen’s Hall, where he will also be joined by George and Aaron Lowden for an on stage conversation exploring the origins of his longstanding relationship with the Lowden guitar brand. A previous recipient of the festival’s Lifetime Achievement Award and winner of numerous international accolades, Bensusan’s performance promises a spellbinding beginning to the anniversary celebrations.

Audiences can also look forward to a powerful tribute to the late John Martyn, delivered by Belfast’s own Ken Haddock and his full band. Haddock - a revered songwriter, guitarist and vocalist - will delve into Martyn’s remarkable catalogue, from timeless favourites such as May You Never and Solid Air to some of the artist’s more experimental and rarely performed works. With top flight musicians including Colm McClean on guitars and John McCullough on keyboards, this special show brings together artistry, memory and a deep love of Martyn’s musical legacy.

Also appearing at this year’s festival is the extraordinary Martin Taylor, returning with his brand new solo show Standards. Described by Jeff Beck as ‘the best guitarist in the world’ and hailed by Pat Metheny as ‘one of the most awesome solo guitar players in history,’ the multi award winning fingerstyle virtuoso brings an evening dedicated to the golden age of jazz. Another previous recipient of the festival’s Lifetime Achievement Award, Taylor’s performance promises breathtaking musicianship, warm storytelling and an intimate journey through the timeless classics that shaped his remarkable six decade career. Supported by Andrew Toman, this will be a standout night for jazz lovers and newcomers alike.

Closing the festival at the Queen’s Hall in electrifying style, Ricky Warwick & The Fighting Hearts bring a raw, heartfelt and hard hitting rock performance back to Warwick’s hometown. Best known for his work with The Almighty, Black Star Riders and Thin Lizzy, Warwick remains one of British rock’s most enduring voices. Fresh from the success of his critically acclaimed 2025 album Blood Ties, he returns to Newtownards with a full band line up and a set that blends grit, melody and deeply personal storytelling. “It’s always extra special for me to play my hometown,” he said. “I’m delighted to bring The Fighting Hearts to the 30th anniversary festival.”

Fans can also look forward to performances by Andy McKee, David Browne Murray, Matthew McAllister with the Classical Guitar Society of Northern Ireland, The Frank Carbery Blues Band, a series of Free Fringe Events and so much more!

The Luthier’s Tale, a special exhibition at Ards Arts Centre will explore the artistry of guitar building, honouring the makers of Lowden and Avalon through a behind-the-scenes look at their craft. Created to mark 30 years of the Ards International Guitar Festival, recognising Newtownards guitar-making heritage.

Speaking about this year’s milestone programme, the Mayor of Ards and North Down, Councillor Gillian McCollum said: “I am thrilled to welcome Ards International Guitar Festival back to the Borough. The guitar has always held a special place in Newtownards’ cultural life, and it is wonderful to see the festival celebrate its 30th Anniversary.”

Festival Director Emily Crawford added: “We are absolutely delighted to be celebrating such a special anniversary this year. The 2026 line up offers an eclectic mix of styles - from classical to folk, blues, contemporary and rock-reflecting the remarkable range of the instrument and its players with some special nods to the history and legacy of the past 30 years.”

The Ards International Guitar Festival runs from 15–19 April. Tickets and full programme details are available at www.ardsguitarfestival.co.uk.

STRUMMING FOR SUCCESS

Picking up a guitar is far more than a quest for rock stardom; it is a profound investment in your cognitive health.

When you learn to navigate the fretboard, you are essentially putting your brain through a high-intensity workout. This process fosters neuroplasticity by forcing the mind to multitask—simultaneously reading notation, maintaining rhythm, and coordinating complex finger movements. These mental gymnastics sharpen your focus and have been shown to improve long-term memory, effectively rewiring your brain to process information more efficiently.

Beyond the mental perks, the guitar serves as a powerful tool for emotional regulation. Engaging with the instrument allows players to enter a “flow state,” a form of active meditation where the stressors of daily life fade into the background. The tactile sensation of the strings and the resonance of the wood provide a physical outlet for expression that can significantly lower cortisol levels. Whether you are strumming a gentle folk tune or shredding a cathartic solo, the act of creation acts as a reset button for the soul.

Finally, the guitar offers physical and social rewards that last a lifetime. Developing the fine motor skills required for intricate chord shapes builds incredible hand-eye coordination and finger dexterity. This newfound skill often translates into a surge of self-confidence that spills over into social settings. As a universal language, music creates instant bridges, whether you are jamming with a local band or simply sharing a song with friends. Even a few minutes of daily practice transforms the guitar from a piece of wood into a lifelong companion for growth and connection.

The first signs of spring

Winter doesn't exit with a grand flourish; it retreats with a slow, muddy exhale.

In the countryside, spring isn't a single date on a calendar but a series of subtle "handshakes" between the earth and the sun. If you're tired of the grey-scale landscape, it's time to stop looking for big changes and start noticing the small, quiet rebellions against the frost.

The first move belongs to the snowdrops. These are the undisputed MVPs of the season, equipped with a natural "antifreeze" that lets them punch through frozen soil without shattering. They are soon joined by the "green mist"—that strange, ethereal aura that settles over the treeline. It isn't an optical illusion; it's the result of sap rising and millions of tiny buds swelling simultaneously, changing the horizon's color before a single leaf has even unfurled.

Look toward the hedgerows and you'll see hazel catkins, often called "lamb's tails," dancing in the wind. These long, yellow-green tassels are designed to flick pollen into the breeze before the summer foliage grows thick enough to block its path. On the ground, the yellow stars of Celandines begin to pepper the ditches. These are the countryside's sun-seekers, opening wide during bright spells and clamping shut the moment a cloud dares to pass over.

The silence of winter breaks first in the canopy. The "Dawn Chorus" returns, led by the Great Tit's rhythmic, two-note "teacher-teacher" call. You'll notice a new, frantic energy as rooks squabble over nesting rights in the treetops and blackbirds dart through the undergrowth with beaks full of dried grass. Even the water stirs; clumps of frogspawn—clear jelly with obsidian centers—appear in the shallows of ponds, signaling that the underwater world has officially woken up.

Finally, there is the scent. As the soil warms and dries, it releases a distinct, earthy perfume known as petrichor.

It's a primitive aroma that signals the ground is ready to support life again. Combined with the sight of "wobbly" newborn lambs in the fields, these signs confirm that the cycle has turned. Spring is here—you just have to look down at the ditches and up at the buds to see it.

Tourism NI launches accommodation certification campaign

Tourism Northern Ireland is urging accommodation providers planning to rent out their properties for Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann this summer to get certified.

Belfast will host Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann, the world's largest annual festival of Irish music, song, dance and competitions, between August 2 and 9, 2026.

Around 700,000 visitors are expected to attend the event, which will include a fringe programme in regional areas.

In preparation, Tourism NI has launched a new accommodation certification campaign to ensure providers are ready for the event.

It is a legal requirement that all visitor accommodation in Northern Ireland is certified by

Tourism NI, even if they are let on an ad-hoc basis.

Such legislation ensures that all providers comply with relevant regulations, operate on a level playing field, maintain quality standards, and instil consumer confidence in our tourism offerings.

More importantly, operating without certification could result in legal action against the operator and reputational damage to the wider industry.

The certification process includes a physical inspection of the property and its facilities by a member of the Tourism NI team. Proprietors can also receive operational and marketing advice during the certification process.

The new industry-wide campaign, which is being supported by the Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service (NIFRS), emphasises the importance of legal operation and the simplicity of the certification process.

The campaign is being launched just weeks before Tourism NI hosts a Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann accommodation information webinar on February 18.

This session will offer accommodation providers planning to promote properties during Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann practical information and highlight the importance of responsible and fair pricing, which will help ensure the event remains accessible for visitors, delivers lasting economic benefits for accommodation providers, and preserves the inclusive spirit that defines the event.

Further details about the webinar and how to register is available at Getting Fleadh Ready: Lunch and Learn Webinar A Guide for Accommodation Providers Aine Kearney, Director of Events at Tourism NI, said: "The process of applying for certification is very simple and can be completed online. Once certified, we will conduct one statutory inspection of the property over a four-year period.

"Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann is sure to draw performers and visitors from around the world who will be in need of accommodation across the region. We want to ensure they receive the best experience possible.

"Therefore, it is really important that anyone providing visitor accommodation is certified in good time ahead of the event in August. We don't want anyone looking to offer visitor accommodation to miss out by not being certified."

Peter Cassidy, Station Commander with the NIFRS, said: "We're proud to partner with Tourism NI to highlight the importance of fire safety in tourist accommodations ahead of this summer's Fleadh Cheoil na hÉireann.

"Before renting out your property as a holiday let, ensure it meets the required fire safety standards by conducting a fire risk assessment, confirming the appropriate smoke alarms are installed and working, and providing clear escape instructions for occupants in case of fire.

"Together, we can help make this a safe and memorable summer, for all the right reasons."

Further information about certification is available from Tourism NI by emailing qa@tourismini.com or by calling 028 90 441545.

ROUND UP OF EVENTING IRELAND NORTHERN REGION FIXTURES FOR 2026

The 2026 equestrian calendar is off to a flying start for Eventing Ireland (EI), with the Northern Region leading the charge through its popular winter series and a robust schedule of upcoming national fixtures.

Led by regional chair Georgia Stubington, the Northern Region remains a powerhouse of the sport, blending grassroots development with high-level competition.

The year began at The Meadows Equestrian Centre (MEC) in Lurgan with the Baileys Horse Feeds Flexi-Eventing Series.

Running every Saturday from January 10th through February 21st, 2026, the series serves as the ultimate "springboard" for the main season.

This format allows riders to choose individual phases

(Dressage, Show Jumping, or Cross-Country) to school their horses. The 2026 league has been bolstered by a £1,000 prize fund from Baileys Horse Feeds, with points awarded for both performance and consistency.

Following the conclusion of the Flexi-Eventing league in February, the Northern Region transitions to its affiliated "One Day Event" (ODE) calendar. While dates are subject to final confirmation by Eventing Ireland, the 2026 schedule is expected to follow the traditional northern circuit:

The Expected Spring/Summer Calendar of events kicks off with the traditional "season opener" on the sandy dunes of Tyrella, Co. Down (March-April). In May the action traditionally moves to Maddybenny on the North Coast, known for its testing cross-country course. The NI Spring Festival Final (April 25-26) and major summer ODEs will be hosted by Castle Irvine, Necarne. In August Loughanmore and Finvoy host high quality fixtures.

While the Northern Region keeps local riders busy, 2026 also features two major "Home Internationals" and championship events that Northern members frequently target:

FEI World Eventing Championships U25 (Millstreet): Takes place July 22-26, 2026, this inaugural event at the Green Glens Arena will bring global talent to Irish shores.

EI National Championships: Traditionally held in early September, the 2026 venue is anticipated to be announced shortly, with Killossery Lodge or Lisgarvan House being top contenders for this rotating fixture.

IPC Eventing Championships: Scheduled for August 21-24, 2026, at Tattersalls, this remains the pinnacle for young Northern Region riders coming through the Pony Club ranks.

'Field to Fork' programme

Mash Direct, the award-winning Northern Ireland food producer, has partnered with the Learning and Engagement team from W5, Northern Ireland's award winning science and discovery centre, to launch the 'Field to Fork' education programme, an interactive initiative helping children understand where their food comes from and the role of sustainable farming.

The pilot scheme has now officially launched and is already being delivered in local classrooms, with visits completed at Comber, Kilcooley and Carrowdore Primary Schools. Pupils have been taking part in hands-on activities that bring the journey of food from field to plate to life, exploring growing conditions, soil health, climate and environmental impact while making clear links between science and the food they eat every day.

Delivered by W5's expert Learning and Engagement team and sponsored by Mash Direct, the free programme engages pupils from ten local primary schools, particularly in areas of higher social deprivation. The sessions are curriculum-linked, hands-on, and designed to spark curiosity and highlight the journey from farm to plate. The pilot includes practical activities such as:

- Growing vegetables from seed and observing how soil and climate affect growth
- Cooking and tasting traditional potato bread
- Exploring balanced nutrition with the Eatwell Plate
- Investigating food miles and sustainable farming practices
- Creating video stories to share learnings

Research underscores the importance of initiatives like this. According to the British Nutrition Foundation (BNF), nearly one in five primary-school children believe fish fingers come from chicken, and close to a third think cheese comes from plants - highlighting a widespread lack of understanding of food origins. Meanwhile, the Agriculture and Horticulture Development Board (AHDB) reports that after using its "Food - a fact of life" resources, 85% of pupils were more informed about where food comes from.

As a pilot scheme, this initiative is sowing the seeds for a broader educational rollout, one that could transform how young people understand food, health and sustainability from the field all the way to their fork.

Minister announces over £2million to cut energy bills for low income homes

More than 1,000 additional low income households will benefit from warmer, more energy efficient homes thanks to a new £2.17million investment announced today by Economy Minister Dr Caoimhe Archibald.

The funding boost for the NI Sustainable Energy Programme (NISEP), delivered by the Energy Saving Trust on behalf of the Utility Regulator, will support insulation and other energy saving measures, and is directed to low income households.

This new allocation brings the Department for the Economy's total investment in domestic energy efficiency measures to over £5million in the last three years.

Speaking in Coleraine, Minister Archibald said: "This funding will enable more than 1,000 low income households to install practical measures such as loft and cavity wall insulation. These improvements will help reduce energy bills, improve comfort and warmth, and lower carbon emissions.

"Over 1,600 homes have already benefited from £3.5million of additional support provided by my Department in the past two years. I am committed to ensuring that no one is left behind as we transition to a greener, more sustainable economy."

The Minister said the investment will also provide a welcome boost to local businesses delivering energy efficiency services.

Sammy Aiken, a homeowner from Coleraine and a beneficiary of the scheme explained: "Thanks to the scheme, I was able to have roof insulation installed without paying the £1,500 upfront cost. Our home feels warmer and more comfortable, and our energy bills have gone down - it's made a big impact for us."

Welcoming the additional funding, Peter Russell, Utility Regulator Executive Director - Price Controls, Networks and Energy Futures, said: "NISEP is about helping homes and businesses become more energy efficient, while also reducing carbon emissions. An average of more than 3,500 households have benefited from NISEP funding annually in recent years.

"Since 2010 NISEP has invested £108million, which will achieve a benefit of £845million for both business and domestic customers in reduced bills.

"We are proud to continue administering NISEP in partnership with the Energy Saving Trust, to ensure energy efficiency support is provided to those who most need it."

The College of Agriculture, Food and Rural Enterprise (CAFRE), in partnership with the Northern Ireland Food and Drink Association (NIFDA), is proud to announce the application period for the Food and Drink Academy is now open.

With training delivery at Loughry Campus, Cookstown in conjunction with Northern Ireland food businesses, the Academy could be a gateway to an exciting career in a thriving sector.

The Food and Drink Academy is a unique 'study first' Apprenticeship programme designed for school leavers who want to combine university-level study with real-world food and drink industry experience. They will build industry connections and develop their transferable skills with top local employers, setting themselves on a pathway for success. On completion of the four-year programme students will graduate with a degree and have four years of professional experience.

Some of Northern Ireland's leading food and drink businesses are partnering with CAFRE and NIFDA in the Food and Drink Academy. Exciting job opportunities are available from September 2026 with Avondale Foods, Deli Lites, Dunbia, Foyle Food Group, Kerry Dairy Ireland, Leprino, McColgan's, Mackle Petfoods, Pilgrims Europe, Strathroy Diaries and Wafer Ltd. Students will be supported by both CAFRE's lecturing staff and trusted local employers, while also gaining financial independence. The Food

DRIVERS PLAGUED BY CRUMBLING ROADS

Northern Ireland's most pothole-ridden areas have been revealed, with the latest data showing that the region's broken roads continue to pose a danger to motorists.

Potholes are a persistent source of frustration for drivers, leading to costly repair bills for thousands of motorists in Northern Ireland every year. They are also a major safety concern, increasing the risk of serious accidents and injuries on our roads.

With the arrival of National Pothole Day (January 15), the car insurance experts at CompareNI.com have sifted through the latest government data to identify the worst-hit areas in 2025 and find out which local councils made the most progress in carrying out repairs.

While there was a slight drop in the number of potholes reported over the last 12 months – down 3% from the previous calendar year – they continue to present a significant challenge for NI motorists, accounting for 80% of all road claims received by Stormont last year.*

The statistics show that of the 127,109 surface defects recorded on NI roads in 2025, a staggering 77% (97,897) were related to potholes.**

Although around two thirds (67%) of all reported potholes were fixed last year, the repair rate varied wildly between council areas – with Fermanagh and Omagh tackling 87% of defects compared to 44% in Belfast.

Overall, Belfast emerged as the area with the highest number of reported potholes, with 16,856 in 2025 – a significant rise of 38% from the previous year.

Newry, Mourne and Down was the next hardest hit area at 15,249, followed by Mid Ulster, which recorded 12,683 potholes.

While four of the 11 local council areas saw an increase in potholes year-on-year, the majority experienced a decrease. Armagh, Banbridge and Craigavon enjoyed the biggest year-on-year drop of 35%, while Lisburn and Castlereagh recorded the fewest potholes overall at 3980.

Potholes are a consistent bugbear for motorists, with a CompareNI survey finding that 91% of drivers here have issues with potholes in their area, with 96% of respondents saying they weren't being fixed quickly enough.

Decades of chronic under-investment in NI's road maintenance has led to a surge in potholes over recent years and created a massive repair backlog, particularly on rural roads.

While potholes can sometimes be an unavoidable part of driving, there are some preventative measures drivers can take to help reduce the risk of damage, such as regularly maintaining tyre pressure, being wary of puddles and checking navigation apps for problem areas.

To report potholes, drivers can contact the Department for Infrastructure – they can also seek compensation for damage to help with repair costs. However, they will need proof the damage came from a pothole, so it is important to take photographs and measurements to use as evidence in the claim.

CompareNI.com gives drivers the tools to shop around and find savings on car insurance, as well as niche items such as van and taxi insurance.

GOLF GTI EDITION 50

Exclusive anniversary model offers outstanding driving dynamics and numerous design highlights

In 2026, the Golf GTI2 will celebrate its 50th anniversary, and the brand is marking this special event with this outstanding special model. With an output of 239 kW (325 PS), the Golf GTI EDITION 50 is going down in history as the most powerful production Golf GTI to date.

The Golf GTI is one of the most successful compact sports cars in the world. More than 2.5 million units have been produced worldwide to date.

Volkswagen is equipping the special model with a 2.0-litre turbocharged engine – a modification of the drive unit from the Golf GTI Clubsport4 with 221 kW (300 PS). Thanks to internal engine measures, the Volkswagen engine team have succeeded in increasing the output of the Golf GTI EDITION 50 to 239 kW (325 PS) – compared with the classic Golf GTI2 in the basic configuration with 195 kW (265 PS), this is an additional 44 kW (60 PS). The maximum torque of the EDITION 50 has been increased to 420 Nm. In comparison, the Golf GTI Clubsport has a maximum torque of 400 Nm, while the Golf GTI produces 370 Nm.

The chassis of the Golf GTI EDITION 50 has been further refined and adapted to the higher power. A MacPherson front axle and a four-link rear axle form the basic layout. Overall, the anniversary model is 15 mm lower than the basic configuration.

The Golf GTI EDITION 50 boasts numerous highlights inside and out.

Combined with the red seat belts, the sporty seats with check pattern, a line in Racing Green and synthetic velour elements create a high-quality ambience with a motorsport touch.

The newly designed multifunction leather sports steering wheel features trim with the GTI 50 logo. Together with the integrated shift paddles for the seven-speed DSG, it offers a real motorsport feeling. The seats and steering wheel are thus the interfaces to the exceptional chassis and engine of the Golf GTI EDITION 50.

On the exterior, the GTI 50 logo is placed on the roof spoiler and the insides of the exterior mirrors. Other exclusive features include special trim on the door sills, a roof with black paintwork, black exterior mirror housings and black tailpipe trims on the exhaust system. A striking side stripe on the side members with a colour gradient from black to Tornado red additionally underlines the sporty character of the vehicle.

Five exterior colours are planned for the Golf GTI Edition 50: in addition to the characteristic Pure white, these are Moonstone grey, Grenadilla black metallic and – exclusively for the anniversary model – Dark Moss green metallic and Tornado red. Tornado red is the colour that has been synonymous with high-performance Volkswagen vehicles over the decades since 1986.

TOP FIVE TRACTORS

The UK tractor market in 2026 is defined by a shift toward “smart power”—machines that don’t just offer raw horsepower, but also the intelligence to use it efficiently.

For British farmers facing rising input costs and tighter environmental regulations, the latest crop of tractors focuses on three pillars: fuel economy, operator retention through comfort, and high-speed road-to-field versatility.

Here is a look at the top five tractor launches in the UK this year and how they translate into tangible benefits for the farm.

Fendt 800 Vario Gen5: The Precision Specialist

The 800 Vario has long been a staple on UK arable farms, and the fifth generation brings “big tractor” technologies down into the mid-to-high horsepower bracket, ranging from 260 to 343 hp. The standout benefit here is the new CORE80 engine, which utilizes the Fendt iD low-speed concept. This allows the tractor to reach its top road speed of 60 km/h at just 1,450 rpm, significantly cutting fuel consumption during transport.

Furthermore, the introduction of the single-stage Vari-oDrive drivetrain eliminates the need for manual range switching between field and road. By automatically managing torque distribution to the axle with the most grip, it ensures permanent four-wheel drive and maximum traction without operator intervention. To round out the package, Fendt has boosted nighttime productivity with an optional lighting package delivering up to 114,700 lumens, which is essential for hitting tight harvest windows in the unpredictable British weather.

New Holland T7 XD: The Heavy-Duty Hybrid

The T7 XD (Extra Duty) marks New Holland’s push into a higher power category, offering up to 435 hp in a frame that remains narrow enough for the UK’s smaller road networks and traditional gate widths. This machine is built for uptime; it features a massive 680-litre fuel tank and a 750-hour service interval. For a large-scale arable farmer, this means fewer interruptions during critical windows and lower long-term maintenance costs.

Despite its high power output, the T7 XD remains surprisingly agile thanks to its structural sump design, which allows for a tighter turning circle than many other tractors in the 350+ hp segment. The comfort level has also been a major focus, with the Horizon™ cab featuring advanced suspension to reduce the physical toll on the driver. This is a critical benefit for farmers looking to retain skilled operators who expect a high-quality working environment during 12-hour shifts.

Massey Ferguson 5S Dyna-VT: The Livestock Evolution

While many launches focus on high horsepower, the MF 5S update is a game-changer for the UK’s livestock and dairy sectors. For the first time, this famous “steep-nose” tractor is available with a Continuously Variable Transmission (CVT). This allows for infinitely variable speeds from 0 to 40 km/h, which is a massive benefit for the slow, precise movements required when stacking bales or navigating a busy silage clamp.

The 5S remains the market leader for loader work because its signature sloped bonnet provides the best forward visibility in the industry. Combined with the fuel-saving Dyna-VT transmission—which allows the tractor to reach road speeds at just 1,550 rpm—it offers a low cost of ownership that is hard to beat. It is a machine that feels just as comfortable feeding cattle in a tight barn as it does hauling a trailer down a B-road.

Choosing a Slurry Tanker for your Farm

Choosing a slurry tanker is one of the most significant investments you’ll make for your farm, and it’s a decision that balances raw power with environmental finesse.

While it’s tempting to simply go for the largest capacity your budget allows, the process requires a deep look at your existing fleet, your soil types, and the tightening net of environmental regulations. It is less about buying a tank and more about buying a nutrient management system that won’t ruin your land in the process.

The first and most critical factor is the relationship between your tractor’s horsepower and the tanker’s capacity. It’s easy to look at a 3,000-gallon tank and think your mid-sized tractor can pull it, but “pulling” is only half the battle. You have to consider the weight of the slurry itself—which is denser than water—and the ability of your tractor to safely stop that mass on a slick incline. A good rule of thumb is to allow for 20 to 25 horsepower for every 1,000 liters of capacity. If you skimp on this ratio, you aren’t just slowing down your work cycle; you’re putting unnecessary strain on your transmission and compromising your safety on the road.

When it comes to the internal mechanics, you’ll likely choose between a vacuum system and a positive displacement pump. Vacuum tankers are the industry’s bread and butter because they are simple, relatively inexpensive, and easy to maintain. However, they can struggle with very thick slurry or long suction lifts. If you are a high-volume contractor or dealing with heavy fibre content, a centrifugal or positive displacement pump might be worth the extra cost. These systems provide more consistent pressure, which is essential if you plan on running wide distribution booms, though they do require a more watchful eye on maintenance to prevent stones from damaging the internals.

Soil health is the often-overlooked victim of poor tanker choice. Large tanks carry immense weight, and if that weight is concentrated on thin tires, you are essentially turning your high-value sward into concrete. Investing in large-diameter flotation tires is the best way to spread that footprint and minimize compaction. Furthermore, if you are looking at tandem or triple-axle models, a steering rear axle is almost non-negotiable. It prevents the tires from “scrubbing” the soil during tight turns at the headlands, protecting the grass and reducing the lateral stress on the tanker’s chassis.

Finally, you have to look at the longevity of the machine. Slurry is incredibly corrosive, and a painted tank will often show its age through rust within just a few seasons. Hot-dip galvanization is the gold standard here, providing a protective zinc coating that shields the steel inside and out. Pay close attention to the thickness of the steel—usually between 6mm and 8mm—and ensure the tanker is “future-proofed” with the necessary brackets and hydraulic plumbing to support low-emission spreading equipment down the line, even if you don’t purchase the boom immediately.

NIFRS REVEALS HIGHEST HOUSE FIRE FATALITIES IN 2025

2025 was the highest year of house fire fatalities in a quarter of a century with 16 losses of life.

The statistics from Northern Ireland Fire & Rescue Service (NIFRS) reveal that half of the incidents were smoking material related with electrical causes contributing to 4 fatalities. A third of the incidents did not have working smoke alarms.

It is known that 75% of the fatalities were people who lived alone, and over 65% of those were also in NIFRS People at Risk group.

NIFRS is urging the public to start the year by taking extra care at home with their safety habits. Most fires are preventable and having working smoke alarms and changing behaviours that create risk can save your life.

NIFRS Assistant Chief

Fire & Rescue Officer Marcus Wright said:

"Our thoughts and sympathies are with the families and loved ones of those who have died in 2025 in house fires. This is the highest number of fatalities since 1999 and is a key priority and concern for us.

The fires show how quickly everyday situations can turn into life-changing emergencies leading to devastating impacts for our community.

"We are pleading with the public to make home fire safety a priority to prevent further loss of life or serious injury.

"Smoking materials have been the leading cause of fatal house fires, accounting for a staggering 43% of such deaths over the past 10 years. We strongly advise for you to smoke outdoors at your property and to extinguish cigarettes before placing them in a suitable container, such as a metal bin.

"A majority of the fatal fires started in a bedroom followed by living room and kitchen.

Therefore, we ask that you check your smoke alarms are fitted, tested regularly, and replace batteries when needed. Please also consider installing smoke alarms in the rooms you use the most.

We would also advise heat detectors in your kitchen and utility.

"As we continue to be in the high-risk time of year for house fire, we are asking you to take time to reach out to vulnerable family members, neighbours and friends who may need support to stay safe from fire, especially those who live alone. If you have any concerns about this person, you can also complete our online Home Fire Safety Check with them, or request an in-person visit.

"We are also calling on our partner agencies to make use of our referral system for Home Fire Safety Checks.

You are the 'eyes and ears' in our community to helping us keep those most at risk safe from fire.

"We are currently considering what more can be done, over and above what is currently being done, to help keep those most at risk safe from fire, as we continue to educate our community and deliver engagement activities."

If you fit NIFRS Person at Risk criteria, have no access to the internet or unable to complete the online self-assessment, please contact NIFRS by phone to receive a free in person Home Fire Safety Check on 028 9266 4221.

MARCH INTO ACTION WITH TASK LIST FOR HOME & GARDEN

March is the bridge between winter's chill and spring's chaos.

It's the time to realize your lawn isn't dead—just sleeping—and that your windows are coated in three months of "winter mood." This month is all about laying the groundwork so you aren't overwhelmed when the heat finally hits.

In the garden, your first task is the "great reveal." Clear away sodden leaves and debris, but stay mindful of hibernating pollinators if the temperature is still dipping. This is the prime window for pruning roses and late-flowering shrubs to encourage vigorous new growth. Cutting back now ensures the plant's energy goes into fresh stems rather than maintaining old wood.

Enriching the soil with compost or well-rotted manure now will pay dividends later. If you have a sunny windowsill, it is officially "go-time" for starting tomatoes, peppers, and sweet peas. These early starts give you a significant head start before the outside soil is fully workable.

Inside the home, use the seasonal shift as a trigger for safety maintenance. Test your smoke alarms and swap out those dusty HVAC filters that have been struggling through the winter. It's also the perfect time to deep-clean your kitchen appliances; running a descaler through your dishwasher now prevents grime from settling in during the busier months ahead.

Finally, take a look at your home's exterior. Winter storms likely left your gutters full of stray grit and leaves, which can lead to damp issues during April showers. A quick visual check of the roof for slipped tiles or nesting birds can save you a fortune in repairs later. A little momentum in March ensures you can actually enjoy the sun when it finally decides to stay.

Warm Healthy Homes Strategy launched

Communities Minister Gordon Lyons recently set out a long-term, cross-government approach to tackling fuel poverty in Northern Ireland.

Speaking after visiting a home in Hopewell Crescent, Belfast to launch 'Warm Healthy Homes: A Northern Ireland Fuel Poverty Strategy 2026-2036', Minister Lyons said: "I am pleased to launch the Warm Healthy Homes strategy, a new approach that has secured Executive backing and which will help lift families out of fuel poverty."

"This is a comprehensive 10-year strategy to ensure that cold, damp homes become a thing of the past. Fuel poverty affects nearly one in four households, and its consequences are linked to poor health and financial stress, particularly for the less well off. This strategy sets out a clear pathway to change that."

The Minister continued: "Together with the draft Anti-Poverty Strategy and the Housing Supply Strategy, the Warm Healthy Homes Strategy will tackle the root causes of fuel poverty and provide meaningful measures and actions which will make a real difference to people across Northern Ireland."

"As part of the strategy, I will introduce a new Warm Healthy Homes Fund next year, for which I intend to allocate £150million to deliver of energy efficiency investment in its first five years. This fund will transform low-income households, modernising energy inefficient homes. Through this fund, along with energy wellbeing advice from trusted partners in the community, I want to ensure those worst affected have the information and means to upgrade their homes for the better. I also want to improve housing standards and my Department has already begun consulting on a revised Decent Homes Standard for social housing."

Householder Trevor Rainey, who had a Low Carbon retrofit upgrade fitted to his home by the Northern Ireland Housing Executive last summer, said: "Since the work was done my bills are a lot lower, the house is warmer and the hot water is great in the mornings. I'd recommend it to anyone."

Cold snaps causing burst pipes – check your property urges NI Water

Since the beginning of January, a series of cold snaps have led to a considerable rise in burst pipes across the NI Water network and on private property.

While the NI Water teams are out finding and repairing bursts on the network, the public can help by checking for leaks on their property.

If you spot a leak on your property, turn off the water supply using your stop valve (usually under the kitchen sink) to minimise any damage. If you spot a leak or burst pipe on the public system - such as on streets, pavements, or public spaces - please report it to us.

Paul Bryce, Head of Water at NI Water, said: "NI Water is asking the public to be proactive; if you discover a leak, repair it if it's on your property or report it to NI Water if it's on the public network. We are also asking farmers, caravan owners and landlords to inspect empty buildings, drinking troughs, sheds, yards, taps, and outhouses - any location with water supplies."

Keep an eye on your water meter, as this can indicate a burst; quick repairs can help prevent unnecessarily high water bills."

How to Report a Leak or Burst Pipe:

If you spot a burst pipe or leak on the road or street, please report it to NI Water straight away. Reporting is quick and easy:

- Fill in the online form at www.niwater.com/report-a-leak-or-burst-pipe
- Contact Leakline on 0800 0282011 (free, open 24/7)

- Use NI Water's webchat service or reach out via NI Water's social media channels

What to Do If You Have a Leak or Burst Pipe:

- Turn off your stop valve (usually under the kitchen sink, turn clockwise).

- Use towels or thick cloths to block escaping water.

- Turn on all taps to lower water pressure and reduce flooding; make sure to turn them off once the problem is fixed.

- Contact a plumber - find an accredited professional by searching your postcode at www.watersafe.org.uk.

- Notify your insurance company to check for protection against water damage.

With further cold snaps possible throughout the winter months, NI Water is also urging the public to protect their outdoor taps from freezing and costly damage caused by leaks and bursts by fitting a free insulated tap cover, available at www.getwaterfit.co.uk while stocks last.
